Technology as Design Material

May 3-4, 2025

Dates

Vitorio Miliano

Instructor

Subject matter covered included: the basic principles of conducting material exploration of technologies, communication strategies to share learnings with non-design colleagues, end-to-end examples of hardware and software that demonstrate these practices in use, and how to support design colleagues through critique. An end-to-end material exploration of a software or hardware technology was planned, and peer critique was given and received.
